FYI -- in case folks don't know:

For the first time, the EPA is being asked to contract directly with the Army Corps of Engineers to handle any and all remediation needed at the West Lake Landfill in Bridgeton.

Activist Dawn Chapman, who lives next to the landfill, calls it a great development.

"The one thing this community has asked for over and over is a new set of eyes to look at the site," she says. "The FUSRAP scientists who work at those sites are qualified to deal with the same material at West Lake. It's all the same material from the Manhattan project, so they do have the expertise."

FUSRAP stands for Formerly Utilized Sites Remedial Action Program, created to clean or control sites in the U.S. contaminated by the nation's early atomic energy programs.

The St. Louis congressional delegation, including senators McCaskill and Blunt and congressmen Clay and Wagner, sent the letter dated Feb. 28 to the Region 7 EPA administrator.

Nancy/Randy: while he at least is not, in this latest instance, contacting an EPA employee at home, he is still circumventing OEA...wanted to let you know so you can let OEA know...

I thought OSWER press office was going to contact John and tell him to stop directly contacting staff. Do you know?

Dear Ms. Legare,

I am looking into a story about the National Remedy Review Board's deliberations regarding the West Lake landfill in Bridgeton, Mo. I would very much appreciate talking with you as soon as possible in connection with the story.

Thanks and regards,

John
